"The current vintage, the 2016 Sierra Cantabria Reserva is all Tempranillo that comes from a mix of estate vineyards. It spends 18 months in half Bordelaise and half American oak barrels before aging another 12 months in bottle prior to its release. Its deep ruby hue is followed by a complex, medium-bodied Rioja offering attractive red and black fruits, leafy tobacco, graphite, and scorched earth-like aromatics. It's medium-bodied, has a focused, structured mouthfeel, plenty of tannins, and outstanding length. It's surprisingly structured and tannic, so give bottles another year or two."
